TENNIS FOR THE SCHOOLS. Gov. James E. Folsom has urged all our schools to promte "the fine healthy game of tennis, which can be played by everyone." To highlight his plea, he invited the world's four greatest professional tennis players to put on an exhibition on the Executive Mansion court last weekend, and invited several hundred tennis enthusiasts to the matches. "Alabama's young athletes are as good as usually find complete and the court of the tennis and the court of the athletes are as good as you'll find anywhere; our climate is perfect for tennis, and we can raise world champion ourselves," he said. "Besides," the Governor added, "now that Spring football training is out, all our youth can play this game, keep fit, and become better students." ### WHICH DO YOU PREFER? Home Grown or Imported?

Here are two sketches-

One shows an existing plant being expanded with "home grown" capital to supplement other capital.

The other shows a brand new plant of similar size being built with capital "coming in".

The new plant coming to town is glamorous; the expansion of an existing plant often is taken as a matter of course. "Outside" capital is essential to the continued growth of Alabama, but the home grown variety is essential, too.

Each represents industrial development—the expansion of an existing plant or the building of a new one with "homegrown" or "outside" capital is just as important as the coming

Much of the tremendous industrial development for Alabama announced during 1955* represented expansion of existing industry. Our Industrial Development men certainly will continue their activities, independently and in cooperation with others, in presenting to American industry the advantages of a plant in Alabama. Among the many elements in the decision to locate a plant—labor, raw material, transportation, markets—is another. That is, how industry already here likes being here. Often the decision to come to Alabama or locate elsewhere depends on that.

Perhaps this week-Alabama Industry Week-will serve as a reminder that every week should be "Alabama Industry Week"-so that those prospective industrial newcomers will have heard that-"Alabama's a good place for industry to be."

*The establishment of 30 new industries and expansions to 26 existing industries in the vicinity of towns and cities receiving their electric power from Alabama Power Company was indicated during 1955. These represent only those which will make capital investments of $50,000 or more each. Total investment is expected to be approximately $276,000,000. The new industries alone will create nearly 9,000 new jobs. The investment figure does not include the cost of additional plants and facilities to be built by Alabama Power Company and other investorowned utilities in Alabama Power Company's service area.
